THE CLERK: Court is now in session. The Honorable Jacqueline Scott Corley presiding.

6

Calling Civil Action 18-MD-2843, In Re: Facebook, Inc.

Consumer Privacy User Profile.

8

Counsel, starting with plaintiffs, can you please state

9 your appearance.

10

MS. WEAVER: Good morning. It's Lesley Weaver of Bleichmar, Fonti & Auld. And today with me I have Anne Davis, 11

12

Matt Montgomery, and Angelica Ornelas.

13

MR. LOESER: Good morning, Your Honor. Derek Loeser

MS. STEIN: Good morning, Your Honor. Deborah Stein

14 from Keller Rohrback with Cari Laufenberg and David Ko and 15

Chris Springer, also from Keller Rohrback.

16 for Facebook from Gibson Dunn. I'm here with Josh Lipshutz, 17 18

Russ Falconer, and Martie Kutscher.

19

THE COURT: Good morning.

20

Okay. Just so you know, I have a criminal matter at 9:00; so we're going to hit sort of the high points.

21

22

Let's start with the ADI because, as I understood it, this was sort of different from the other privilege log because 24

23

Facebook has taken the position that because all these 25 documents, interviews -- I don't know what the ADI is -- were created as part of a lawyer-directed investigation, they're privileged.

So I don't -- I don't think it's premature in the sense now that you've gone through the stip, the process that the parties agreed to, you were able to narrow it down. I think now is the time to -- and plaintiffs have focused on, I guess, their e-mails or memos, or whatever it would be, in which there's no attorney on the string, on that. And so I think that's ripe to go forward.

I don't know what meeting and conferring will do. As you explained, you put very detailed explanations of why it's privileged. Either they don't believe you or, what's often the case, they want confirmation. Right? So that's why we'll do some samples.

So what I was going to suggest -- sometimes when we do these, if the parties need guidance, including the party claiming they're privileged, I let each side pick any number. I don't see why Facebook should maybe pick any. It really should be I just think plaintiff. I was going to say pick 20.

And then let's just get simultaneous briefs because, while I do this all the time, I know with respect to investigations, it'd be nice to bring me up to speed on the state of the law with respect to that and privilege. And then I'll review them.

So that would be my proposal.

MS. STEIN: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

I think the issue here is that while this exercise started as, you know, what I think was intended by plaintiffs to be some sort of categorical challenge to investigate -- to an investigation, the way this has played out in the privilege log is that we've logged about 6,000 entries. Plaintiffs have said they want to challenge anything that doesn't have a lawyer on it. But the logs look very much like you would expect an ordinary privilege log to look like, where the entries that they're challenging facially say things like, you know, "E-mail revealing advice from Gibson Dunn concerning the structure of a legal investigation," you know, things like that; "E-mail summarizing advice from Gibson Dunn" or from someone from Facebook in-house counsel. So it's not necessarily something that is any different than you would ordinarily see.

And we feel that plaintiffs haven't -- are just saying:
We want to challenge everything. But there really isn't a rhyme or reason that connects it to how this started out as a challenge to whether this investigation was privileged.

THE COURT: Well, they've now challenged 400 out of 6,000. So that's good. That's narrowed -- right? -- considerably.

And I think whenever there's not a lawyer on it -right? -- that's always more on the edges. That's more on the edges. So I think that the showing sufficient to allow the in camera review is there. I feel more comfortable when I have it in context and I can see it. That's why I say just do a sample, and then that should be the end of the matter.

I think a concern we have about jumping directly into briefing, particularly if the briefing is going to be simultaneous, is we don't actually really know what we're briefing at this point.

We don't know what plaintiffs' position is. We don't know why they think these particular documents are not privileged.

MS. KUTSCHER CLARK: Your Honor, if I can add to that,

Each one of these documents, the way they're logged -and, you know, we've looked at them carefully -- they're summarizing legal advice; they're conveying legal advice. This isn't -- you know, we're not standing on a work product assertion.

THE COURT: No, no. But it's your burden. It's your burden; so you know what to brief. Whatever it is that meets your burden. Right? It's your burden. It's not their burden. It's your burden to show that they're privileged. So --

MS. STEIN: Yes, Your Honor. And --

THE COURT: -- whatever the case law is, whatever it is that says just because an attorney isn't -- which you did a little bit -- isn't on the string doesn't mean, if it's conveying legal advice -- it shouldn't be very long.

MS. STEIN: So just for clarity, Your Honor, is what you're asking for for briefing where plaintiffs challenge certain entries, they pick certain entries that they want to challenge; we respond why we believe our log has made the showing that we're entitled to show; and then Your Honor will decide who's right on the law and decide which ones, if any, you're going to review in camera?

in camera with the briefs and then decide: Yes, the privilege was appropriately invoked.

And then that should be the end of the matter. Right? I don't then expect -- if, let's say, all 20 I believe were properly invoked, that should be the end of the matter because plaintiff should really be picking the 20 out of the 400 that they feel most strongly might not be privileged. Right? So it's sort of an exemplar in that state.

If I don't agree, well, then it becomes more complicated. Right?

MS. STEIN: Right. I guess sort of a parallel question is that, because this is in the context of an investigation, I suspect we may want to provide supporting information. You may not be able to tell, Your Honor, from the face -- some of the documents, I think you will be able to see that it's revealing direct attorney communications or whatnot. Others may be something that was at the direction of counsel which may require context.

THE COURT: But isn't that on the log that you already provided to them, or did you just say -- I don't think you attached -- did you just say "Direction of counsel" with 1 2 identifying the counsel or...

              MS. STEIN: I think it depends on the entry, 3
     Your Honor. But given that this was an attorney-driven 4 5 investigation, I would -- I just don't know what kind of 6 additional information Your Honor might want for us to support that aspect.
 7
              THE COURT: Whatever you think meets your burden, 8 that's all.
 9 10 Thank you.
              MS. STEIN:
11
              THE COURT:
                         Whatever you think you need, or maybe more than you think you need, to meet your burden. Right?
12
              MR. KO: Your Honor, this is David Ko on behalf of 13 14 plaintiffs.
15
          And thank you for that. I think that's what we've been 16 wanting to do, quite frankly, since last spring and summer, to 17 give you -- 18
              THE COURT: I'm going to stop you, Mr. Ko.
                       Okay.
19
              MR. KO:
20
              THE COURT: You should retract the last thing you 21 said.
           Not productive. Not helpful. Okay?
22
                       Sounds good. Scratch that from the record.
              MR. KO:
23
     I fulfill my New Year's resolution.
          But let me ask for some context -- or some clarification
24 25 on the 20, because with respect to the 400 entries that we have identified to Facebook, those include both parent documents and attachments.

So our assumption would be the 20 -- the 20, you know, exemplars that we propose to you would be both -- you know, one document or one communication would be both the parent and the attachment or attachments. So --

THE COURT: Yeah. There were 400 entries. So 20 entries.

MR. KO: Well, I guess that's what I was hoping to get clarification on, Your Honor, because the 400 comprises documents that reflect both the parent and the underlying attachments.

THE COURT: You mean a single entry would comprise both?

MR. KO: Well, no. There would -- for example, there could be seven entries that relate to one document.

So the way that Facebook has logged these materials, they include -- for example, if there's an e-mail and then a diagram, you know, they claim that there's a diagram that was attached to the e-mail that is also privileged. And then there's also another attachment -- because oftentimes in e-mails we attach one or more attachments -- and then there's a spreadsheet. So what they've done is they've separately logged those. So --

THE COURT: That's okay. 20 entries.

And look, if it turns out one of the entries involving an e-mail, I say, "Oh, not privileged," well, then you're going to have a discussion anyway; and maybe something then that was attached, if it's not in your 20, we'll have a discussion about. Just 20 entries. MR. KO: Understood. Thank you, Your Honor. MR. MONTGOMERY: Okay. Your Honor, before we move on, quick question. How long do you want the briefs? THE COURT: I don't think they should be long. mean, I'm thinking, like, ten pages. But you tell me because it's -- I don't know. Ten pages is fine. We can do that. MS. WEAVER: And when would you --THE COURT: Well, let me ask Facebook because it is their burden. Thank you, Your Honor. MS. STEIN: I think it's -- because we don't necessarily know what's being challenged, it's a little bit up in the air. we'll probably need more than ten pages for 20 documents because we may need to provide --THE COURT: Okay. So one page -- no more than one page per document. I don't mean -- just 20 total. Right? can divide it up any way you want among the 20 entries, but 20 total.

 1
              MS. WEAVER: Your Honor, the one thing I would ask -- 2
              THE COURT: Yeah.
 3
              MS. WEAVER: -- is that if we are -- if they are 4 5 putting in declarations that we're seeing for the first time, 6 plaintiffs would like an opportunity to respond to any new information that's provided.
 7
          I mean, to your point -- 8
              THE COURT: I don't want declarations. I don't want 9 10 declarations.
11
              MS. WEAVER: Okay.
                          I want the log of the entries.
12
              THE COURT:
     what was logged for the entries. And then I want briefs, like 13 the argument.
14 15
              MS. WEAVER: Okay.
16
              THE COURT: No declarations.
17
              MR. MONTGOMERY:
                              Okay.
              THE COURT: I want to make this simple. If we need 18 19 more, then we can get more at the time.
20
              MR. MONTGOMERY: Last question, I promise, on ADI.
21
          We proposed filing our brief on January 29th.
                                                          Is that still a deadline the Court wants us to hold to?
22
23
              THE COURT: Well, that seems a little soon.
            When are you going to identify -- when are the 24 25 plaintiffs going to identify the 20?
```

```
MR. MONTGOMERY: We could do it within seven days; so 1 2
    by next Friday.
                         Okay.
                                 So that would be the 22nd.
              THE COURT:
 3
     I think a brief by the 29th might be a little -- how about the 4 5
     5th? Does that work, Ms. Stein?
              MS. STEIN: For plaintiffs to submit an opening brief 6 on the 5th?
 7
              THE COURT:
                         No. I thought we were just going to have 8 simultaneous briefs.
 9
                          I think that's going to be a little bit 10
              MS. STEIN: 11 fast for us, Your Honor, if we've just found out what the entries are.
12
              THE COURT: 13 That's two weeks. Well, no, because you already logged them. Right? It's merely putting down into 14 15 more paper the analysis that's already been done because 16 they've already been logged.
17
          I mean, and also, I thought this was going on in other cases and this is not new or -- ADI. I mean, we've known this 18
     is at issue. You know. You have your argument as to why they're privileged. I assume somewhere in a file, virtual, 20 21 there's a memo, quite thorough, with all the law and anything.
22
     It just needs to be turned into a brief.
          So I think the 5th would be fine. That's two weeks.
23
          But if you can identify, Mr. Montgomery, before the 22nd, 24 25 that would be helpful.
```

6

```
We will try to do so, Your Honor.
 1
              MR. MONTGOMERY:
                          I mean, same thing. It shouldn't take --
              THE COURT:
     I mean, you've had those. You've analyzed them. It's the 400
 3 to the 20.
 4 5
                 All right. So that takes care of the ADI.
         Okay.
         And then I'll have argument if I need it. If I need 7 something more, I will. I promise. I don't want to make a decision that I'm not comfortable with.
 8
                So the 30(b)(6) deponent, so I did read the notice 9 and Facebook's letter. And then now plaintiff has another 10 11 proposal -- I guess you're -- I don't know, Ms. Stein, you seem to be the lead today -- just more generally.
12
          I mean, the idea was -- right? We went through this whole 13 exercise about the scope of discovery. Long, long months.
14
                                                                 And 15 then Facebook was saying: Well, actually, we've already 16 produced everything within that scope. And so that's sort of 17 like, let's just cut to it. Right?
         And so what about plaintiffs' proposal in the statement 18 now, just those three topics, which is essentially the topic:
19
     What is it that you -- what information do you gather about 20
            What do you do with it?
21 users?
                         Well, Your Honor -- 22
             MS. STEIN:
23
              THE COURT:
                         And how do you monetize it?
                         -- that's what we endeavored to do in the 24
             MS. STEIN: 25 letter that we sent plaintiffs, was to take those three topics and put some more meat on the bones of what we would be preparing a witness on, because the topics, as Your Honor proposed, which really is exactly what our letter fleshes out --

THE COURT: Well, except this. I don't mean to interrupt you, because we're done at 9:00. Except that your letter is more like a topic and a directive. Right? "Data was not sold." It's sort of almost like a directive to the witness will testify.

No. The witness will testify as to what the witness knows. And that may be what you believe, but that's not the topic, that data was not sold. The topic is: How do they monetize it? wherever that may lead. It may lead that the data was not sold. Right?

But the problem I had with the letter was it jumped to the conclusion as to -- not the topic, as to what it was going to be, almost like a directive.

But if you take what plaintiff says and yours and you take out the directives, then I think that's -- then you are on the same page.

MS. STEIN: Yes. Your Honor, I don't think we were intending to direct a witness on anything. I think what we were trying to do was explain, you know, more -- in more particularity what a witness -- the subjects within this that a witness was going to be focused on, because we obviously need to be able to prepare witnesses -- one or more witnesses to meaningfully testify.

And the topics, just the three big categories could go in a lot of different places. And I think the fact that plaintiffs' notice looks different from what we thought this was is a good reason for that.

So, I mean, we certainly didn't intend to be suggesting that we were directing a witness to testify --

THE COURT: Well, I'm just looking at Topic 4, how Facebook monetized user data. First, data was not sold.

No, that's not the topic. That's not what their question is. Their question is: How did they monetize it? wherever it may lead.

And a lot of this is coming from because you guys have made representations, all in good faith, all what you've been told. Right? And so now it's like, okay, where is it coming from?

So I don't even know, actually -- this is just sort of a preliminary initial "Let's get started," because we seem to be -- like, I just couldn't figure out how to break through all this stuff.

MS. STEIN: Sure.

THE COURT: So I don't even know that the -- and if the witness is asked something they can't answer, then they can't answer. Right? That's okay. Then we know. Like, it's exploratory in that sense. 1 So --2 MS. STEIN: Right. We --MR. LOESER: Your Honor --3 MS. STEIN: -- just wanted -- we just wanted to make 4 5 sure, Your Honor, what we were trying to avoid for any 6 30(b)(6). We have an obligation to prepare, and we want to 7 make sure that everyone's on the same page and we get there and we don't spend the day fighting about the scope of the 8 deposition. 9 10 So what we were trying to do in our letter was really just 11 say: Hey, here's what we're prepping the witness on, the subjects. Here's how we understand it. You know, if there's 12 some disagreement on this, if we're missing something, let us 13 know. 14 15 We do not expect -- we don't want this to be a directive, 16 Your Honor. You know, that's not the intention. It was sort 17 of more of a blueprint of how we were going to be focusing, 18 you know, with our client on what questions needed to be 19 answered, but, you know, certainly not a directive. 20 MR. LOESER: Your Honor? 21 THE COURT: Yes. MR. LOESER: Derek Loeser. If I could be heard for a 22 23 moment. This topic -- you know, there's no sense talking about the 24 25 I know Your Honor isn't interested in it. So I'll just try and be practical here. 1 2 We have an order. The order indicates what the subjects are. You issued another order indicating that there needed to 3 be a 30(b)(6) notice. We took the three topics that were the 4 5 subject of Discovery Order Number 9 and we reduced them to very 6 concrete, very specific topics. They track directly to the order. 7 THE COURT: You mean, you're talking about your 8 notice, or are you talking about what's in your CMC statement? 9 10 MR. LOESER: I'm talking about our notice and why 11 we --THE COURT: Okay. I don't want to talk about your 12 13 notice. That was way beyond what I had in mind too. 14 MR. LOESER: Okay. 15 That was way beyond what I had in mind. THE COURT: So I don't want to talk about your notice. 16 17 Because you put something in your CMC statement. I want 18 to talk about that --MR. LOESER: Okay. What we put in our --19 20 -- what you put in your CMC statement. THE COURT: 21 MR. LOESER: Right. What we put in our statement was: 22 We're happy to go back to just having a deposition that is We're happy to go back to just having a deposition that is defined by those three topics. But what we'd like to avoid is having a deposition in which most of the deposition is spent fighting with Facebook about whether we get to ask all of the

25

questions we want to about those three topics. And so -- 1
              THE COURT: You can ask. They may not be able to 2
             So it would be best to spend your time on what the 3 witness is able to answer.
 4 5 MR. LOESER: And --
              THE COURT: This is not -- it doesn't come up against 6 anything or anything like that. It's like an exploratory -- 7 frankly, I wish I could be there and ask the questions because 8
     I want to know.
 9 10
              MR. LOESER: Well, Your Honor, you are -- 11
              MS. WEAVER: We wouldn't mind, Your Honor.
              MR. LOESER: -- invited.
12 I'm not. But I will -- 13
              THE COURT:
              MR. LOESER: You are welcome.
14 15
              THE COURT:
                           I'm not. You can hire a special master 16 for that, if you want.
17
              MR. LOESER: I quess here's what I'm trying -- 18
              MS. KUTSCHER CLARK: Your Honor, I --
              MR. LOESER: We have a letter from them, which is like 19 20 a bit of a maze, and it says what is and is not going to be the 21 subject of this testimony.
          I disagree and we all on the plaintiff side wholeheartedly 22 23 disagree with the various and many and confusing limitations their letter describes.
24 25
          If what that letter indicates is that when we go to the deposition, those are the objections that they're going to make and they're going to follow the roadmap that they have put in their letter about what they're not going to allow the witness to testify to, I think that that would be -- it's highly inefficient. Also, it would just be completely inappropriate, given the scope of the -- just the general three topics that the witness is supposed to be testifying about. That's kind of the practical problem that we see.

And we're happy to go ahead and go take the deposition, but I fear that what we're going to get is, where they've set forth in this detailed letter this path, this narrow path that they want this witness to travel, it's just going to be a huge problem because the path has nothing to do with the areas that we're entitled to take discovery.

THE COURT: The problem is, we're never going to get to that depo if I leave it to you all just to negotiate the scope. We're never. It'll be five months from now until it gets there. It just needs to get started and get there.

I mean, maybe -- I think the place to start, actually, is for Facebook to identify: Here's the general topics.

I mean, they're not -- it shouldn't -- it's not -- this is pretty basic stuff in some sense. Right? This is to get at the basic. Like, one of the main questions is user data, what is collected and what is done with it. Right? That's it.

That's it.

And so there have been representations that have been made that the stuff that's been produced is all. So there are people there. So, Facebook, identify to plaintiffs who's going to be the deponent. Right? That'll then let you know somewhat what that person knows or doesn't know. And then the same thing with the monetization. I think that's a start, and then you go and we'll see what we get. And if you don't get what I think you should get, no one's going anywhere; we can come back and do it again. is just to try to break through that logiam and get started. MR. LOESER: I hear that, Your Honor, and I appreciate And obviously, we will jump right in and try and do that. I think Facebook obviously understands that this is a that. witness that's supposed to be prepared to testify, and so hopefully the witness comes prepared to testify about the full range of topics that these issues relate to. THE COURT: Well, that's what Ms. Stein said. why she sent the letter, because they understand that they have to prepare the witness to testify. MR. LOESER: But --That's exactly --MS. STEIN:

MR. LOESER: -- I mean, I don't want to bore -- you know, I'm sorry to -- we can move on; but what the letter says is what they're going to prepare the witness to testify about.

 1
                          That's what I said. Isn't that what I 2
              THE COURT:
     said at the beginning? That's what I said.
                                                   They heard it.
 3
     I'm confident that they heard it, that that's not going -- that 4 5 that's not going to happen.
          For example, it can't be -- I'll give you an example.
 6
          Well, did you gather this type of -- did you gather this 7 type of information about users?
 8
               The witness can't answer that because that 9 No.
     information wasn't shared.
10 11 Right?
12
              MR. LOESER: Okay.
                          That's a different question. The question 13
              THE COURT:
     is what did they gather, and then what was shared.
14
15
              MS. STEIN: Right.
16
              THE COURT:
                         Whether it was shared or not.
17
          Ms. Stein is shaking -- 18
              MS. STEIN: Right.
              THE COURT:
                         -- her head "yes."
19 20 We're all -- 21 Right.
              MS. STEIN:
22
              THE COURT:
                         -- on the same -- 23
              MR. LOESER: Right. And so --
              MS. STEIN:
                          We understand -- 24 25
              MR. LOESER: -- by the same --
```

MS. STEIN: -- that, and that was what our letter was intended to communicate, that they would get to ask questions about the scope of what was collected and then they would narrow it down to find out what was shared or accessed.

But Mr. Loeser identified our concern, Your Honor, is that they're primed to say that our witness isn't prepared. And we really -- we take this seriously. It's important. We know it's binding on the company. And so we want to do the best that we can to, you know, make everyone happy here.

You know, we will take Your Honor's topics. Our letter should not be viewed as a directive. If there's something that plaintiffs looked at and think is missing, you know, we should discuss that before the depositions so that we know and we can make sure the witness is prepared.

But we were trying to cover the -- in doing this letter, we were trying to cover the landscape of everything. And, you know, I'm sorry some of it sounded like a directive. We were just really trying to flesh out what we thought this meant. And the categories of things that we listed of what was collected, we think that's everything. So we were just really trying to be comprehensive here so that we were all on the same page.

THE COURT: So, Mr. Loeser, if you look at the topics from their letter, as opposed to what's underneath, does that cover -- I think that covers everything.

```
I think, Your Honor -- 1
              MS. WEAVER:
                           Well, not really. I mean, the topics
 2 MR. LOESER:
     identify the categories that are indicated in the Court's 3 4 orders; but then there's this complicated roadmap about what is 5 and isn't going to be testified about.
                          That's why I said if you just look at the 6
              THE COURT:
     topics, that covers everything -- right? -- the topics.
 7
              MR. LOESER: Well, I believe that the topics identify 8 the categories that are set forth in the order. So -- 9 10
              THE COURT:
                          Okay.
11
              MR. LOESER: -- yes, those are the topics.
              THE COURT: There we are. So that's the guidance.
12 13
     That's what the witness should be prepared to testify to.
          And as I said, and Facebook said they understand.
14 15 Facebook believes something wasn't shared or that the purpose ultimately wouldn't be admissible is not a reason not to answer 16 17 the question. Right?
18
              MR. LOESER: Okay. And so we're not --
              THE COURT:
                          It's discovery -- 19 20
              MR. LOESER: -- doing things --
              THE COURT: -- as to what user was -- what information
21 22 was collected, what did they do with it, how, why.
23
          And then, where that leads to, what the consequence of that is, who knows?
24 25
              MR. LOESER: So let me just --
```

THE COURT: Great.

MR. LOESER: Not to beat a dead horse, to use a bad metaphor here, but the -- I'll just read a statement in their letter, and I think that this will provide clarification on what will happen with that.

Page 3 of their letter, at the bottom of the page, there's a statement (reading):

"Facebook does not intend for its designee to provide details regarding the categories of information it may have received from third parties, except as described below."

Well, we're not going to limit our questioning to the narrow scope that this letter seems to suggest the witness will be testifying about.

And I think what Your Honor is saying is we're just focused on the main topics; we don't need to worry about the limitations set forth in this letter because the witness will be prepared to testify about the full topic; and it's testimony -- Facebook will not have made the decision not to prepare the witness to testify to this limitation that's set forth in this letter.

THE COURT: Well, I guess the question is "details."

Right? Details, I don't know what that means, "details," versus sort of categories or things like that. If we're going to go into details about all those, then you're going to run out of time.

                   So -- right?
 1
          It's sort of a high-level: Genesis of it was, again, that 2 Facebook's representation, after we went through all this 3 briefing about the scope of discovery as to plaintiffs' user 4 5 information, that they had, in fact, produced all of plaintiffs' user information. So, that is shared.
 6 7
          So let's now find out what is it that they collect about users.
 8
              MR. LOESER: Okay.
                                  I hear Your Honor.
 9
              THE COURT: Whether it be from a third party, whether 10 11 it be from their own -- whatever it is. Whatever it is.
     is it?
12 13
          And categories. Right? If there's a particular detail, they're not going to be able to go into details about -- I 14 15 don't know -- which apps or this or that or that. Right?
16 is just -- 17
              MR. LOESER: No.
                                I hear that.
              THE COURT:
                          -- high level.
18
              MR. LOESER: And I agree with you.
19 20
              MS. WEAVER: Your Honor --
              MS. KUTSCHER CLARK: And, Your Honor -- 21 22
              MR. LOESER: All I'm talking -- 23
              MS. WEAVER: You're right. Let's get started. love a date, and we will take this deposition according to your 24 25 direction.
```

And so if Ms. Stein wants to identify who they'll be producing, we're ready, you know, early February to take this deposition.

THE COURT: Well, I don't know about -- in February.

But, Ms. Kutscher Clark, you were trying to say something.

MS. KUTSCHER CLARK: Oh. I just wanted to assure the Court that the type of language surrounding the type of detail that would be testified to is really intended to zoom in on what's relevant here.

The idea was, to the extent the deponent, for instance, testifies that particular data is used only for a security feature, you know, to make sure that there isn't a security breach on the platform, they don't then need to go into detail, for instance, about how that security feature operates.

That's all we're intending to convey there. Let's get to the types of data and the types of uses that are actually relevant here, and, of course, we'll provide testimony about that. But if it's clearly outside the scope of what we're talking about in this case, a high-level explanation should be sufficient.

THE COURT: Okay. I don't think Mr. Loeser disagrees with that.

MR. MONTGOMERY: Before Your Honor has to leave us, can I just clarify that we're talking about, really, two depositions: one deposition about the monetization and one deposition about data?

```
 1
              THE COURT: Yeah. I mean, I don't know. It seems 2 like the data would be the longer deposition. Right?
 3
              MR. MONTGOMERY: I think we're anticipating, you know, 4 5 a full day for each, if that's permissible by the Court.
              MS. STEIN: That sounds -- for, you know, a 30(b)(6) 6 7 and when -- on two topics, when you often get seven hours for one 30(b)(6), like, we understand these are important topics, 8 but, you know, I think two full days is, you know, a little bit 9 10 of overkill here. I think, you know, a few hours -- 11
              THE COURT:
                          Ten hours.
                         -- each for an -- 12
              MS. STEIN:
                          Ten hours. Ten hours. And I would think 13
              THE COURT:
     that plaintiffs would want most of it to go to the user 14 15 information. I mean, that -- I mean, seven hours for that 16
     I think you could do easily. I don't know. Maybe not. I 17 don't know.
18
          Ten hours.
              MS. WEAVER: We will take the deposition, and we will 19 20 report back.
21
              THE COURT: But not in -- ten hours over two days, though -- right? -- not one day. Or even more.
22 However you want to do it.
23 Okay. Excellent.
24
              MS. STEIN: And, Your Honor, just for clarification, 25

you know, I understand that plaintiffs want the identities of these witnesses. I don't know them yet. I don't know who --

THE COURT: Oh, no, no, no. I understand you don't.

No, no. They didn't -- I actually brought that up.

I just thought, when you tell them, then that gives them comfort -- right? -- that you're not taking the engineer from wherever. Right? You're actually -- there are people within Facebook who actually know this information -- right? -- that they're high enough up that they have the big picture.

MS. STEIN: Right.

THE COURT: So my thinking was that when you share that name, that'll give them some comfort that the person will be -- when you say "be prepared" -- right? -- it's like you can't tell them what -- you can prepare them in the sense of what they should prepare to testify. They're going to have to know or do the gathering to know.

MS. STEIN: Correct, Your Honor.

One thing that I would just appreciate some clarification on. These witnesses are not being deposed in their personal capacity right now. So I just want to make sure that we're not going to be -- you know, by giving them the names in advance, we're not going to be seeing e-mails that these people are being shown and impeached and whatnot; that this is a deposition to get information from them, but not to start a whole cross-examination of them in their personal capacity.

Deb, we agree with that, except to the extent if it relates to the topic of the deposition, we may introduce -- obviously, we'll be introducing exhibits and if a deponent's name has to be on it.

    But we agree, not personal capacity. This is a corporate deposition, both of them.
         THE COURT: There may be e-mails. Right?
documents they reviewed that lead them to believe that there was other user information that was collected about users.
        So they will probably show the deponent one of those Right?
e-mails and say: Well, doesn't this mean this? Right?
                    Yes, Your Honor.
        MS. STEIN:
                    That would be the objective.
         THE COURT:
                     I normally -- unless someone is also being
        MS. STEIN:
deposed in their personal capacity, I normally don't share the name of a 30(b)(6) deponent in advance of a deposition.
just don't want this to sort of get turned into something that is not a 30(b)(6) deposition.
         THE COURT: Okay. It won't. All right? And there'll be a record. So no worries.
        MS. WEAVER: And is Your Honor planning on providing dates for the depositions?
         THE COURT: No. I said it needs to happen by -- in February.
        MS. WEAVER: Okay. Is this a leap year?
```

(Laughter.) 1 I don't think so. 2 THE COURT: MS. WEAVER: I think not. 3 It's an odd year; so I don't think so. 4 MS. STEIN: 5 MS. WEAVER: Sorry, Deb. No February 29th. 6 THE COURT: Okay. I have a change of plea. 7 Just let me give some guidance as to deposition transcripts or written discovery. I mean, clearly, anything 8 that Facebook has said under oath about relevant topics is 9 10 relevant. And I would think discovery, unless there's some 11 privilege I'm not aware of -- right? So if they did an interrogatory answer on a relevant topic, that's discoverable. 12 Your Honor, this is a very serious issue 13 MS. STEIN: for us, especially because this is in the context of government 14 investigations. And we're dealing with government entities who 15 16 often don't even want us to get the transcript because it's 17 their investigation. So, you know, having this clone discovery 18 issue about what's going on in government investigations is a 19 very significant issue, and respectfully --20 Well, that's different than -- that's THE COURT: 21 different than an interview. I thought what was in the letter was depositions. 22 23 MS. WEAVER: Your Honor, it's both depositions and the FTC, who has unequivocally stated in this proceeding that they 24 do not object to us receiving information. We have the FTC's 25 answers.

                          So, okay. Let me just, because I'm --

 3
              MS. WEAVER: We just want -- 4 5
              THE COURT:
                          I'm just giving guidance. I'm not ruling.
 6
     I'm just giving guidance because it's not ripe and presented to

          My quidance is, for example, if -- it's almost like Jencks 8 material.
               Right?
 9 10
              MS. WEAVER: Right.
                          If a witness made statements on the 11
              THE COURT:
     topics, if they're going to be a witness in the case, if 12 they're going to be deposed, then I think it's certainly 13 relevant what they said under oath in another case on the same 14 15
             Right? Not if it was unrelated. And the same thing topics.
16 with interrogatory responses. And then I gave a caveat, which 18

          That's all.
                       That's just the guidance that I'm giving.
              MS. WEAVER: Okay. We will bring it before you if we 19 20 can't resolve it.
21
              THE COURT: Okay. I guess we need a next date.
                                                               What
